About the University

The University of Thessaly is situated in the region of Thessaly, Greece. The university's administration offices are located in Volos, but there are campuses in other major cities in Thessaly, Larissa, Trikala, Karditsa and Lamia, as well as in Volos.

The University of Thessaly was founded in 1984. The university comprises of five schools— Humanities and Social Sciences, Engineering, Agricultural Sciences, Health Sciences and Science. It is divided into 18 departments offering undergraduate and postgraduate degree programmes.

For more information, please visit the university's website: http://www.uth.gr/en/index.php

The Erasmus Staff Week will be hosted in the city of Volos.

For more information on all five cities of the region of Thessaly you can visit the following sites:

- http://www.dimosvolos.gr
- http://www.larissa-dimos.gr
- http://www.trikalacity.gr
- http://www.karditsa-city.gr/
- http://www.lamia.gr

A few words about Volos

Volos is a coastal city in Thessaly situated midway on the Greek mainland, about 326 kilometres north of Athens and 215 kilometres south of Thessaloniki. It is the capital of the Magnesia regional unit. It is built at the innermost point of the Pagasitikos Gulf and at the foot of Mount Pelion, the land of the Centaurs.

For more information on the city of Volos and the surrounding area, please visit the following website: http://www.discovergreece.com/en/mainland/thessaly-sporades/volos