General Programme

The programme comprises of intensive sessions held over three days at the University of Aveiro Campus on the Atlantic coast of Portugal, close to the sea. In addition, given the ever-growing importance of regional cooperation, which will be one important focus of the training, company visits are also a vital part of the programme.

Methodology

The learning methodology is based on sharing the experiences among participants and comparing solutions with regard to the institutional organization and development of PhD studies. The first two days of the training involve highly interactive workshops in which small working groups are given a challenge to solve as a team, with the solutions presented at the end of the working day. To set the tone and theme for the group work, each day there will be an address by a guest keynote speaker with relevant experience and expertise in their respective field. The third day of the training is dedicated to visits to the region, to discuss with large and small companies the relative importance of doctoral level studies and to listen to the viewpoint of business and industry on the topic.
